FROM THE DESK OF THE RABBI

NO TO SOCIAL DISTANCING! (Did the Rabbi just say that?)

This is the first newsletter coming your way from our Morristown Jewish Center since March. I am grateful to Donna Gross for taking this on, as yet another way to stay connected.

The title of this article should have you in shock, or at least gasping. I hope so and I hope it caught your attention. Right now, this summer of 2020, our world in New Jersey, secular and Jewish, begins to slowly and cautiously open, This is the way it should be. The Covid-19 virus is not something to take lightly. You don't need to tell me.

So we hear all the time 'wear a mask' and yes – we all should. It will save lives.

And then we hear - keep social distancing - defined in various places as 6 ft, 10 ft, 12 feet. And we should keep distanced. But it is with the phrase 'social distancing' that I would like to take issue. In fact I like another idea that has made it's way in some circles. It is 'Physical Distancing'

There is a world of difference between physical distancing and social distancing. In fact when we think about it, this is what we have been doing. We have kept physically distanced, while at the same time done our best to keep socially and spiritually close. We can be far from one another, feet, yards, miles, and at the same time stay connected.

For the past months, this is exactly what our congregation has done. We have kept physically distanced (not because we wanted to) and stayed socially connected as best as we can to the people we know and love, including our MJCBY community, in a virtual world. We have done that at Zoom services and we learned how to say Shabbat shalom in gallery view. Our religious school carried on with zoom classes...yes even zoom understands Hebrew words! Miriam not only carried on with programs that had been planned, but also introduced new programs and new ways for us to gather and see each other. We have learned now how to celebrate graduations, births and other milestones in new and creative ways. All of us are fully aware too that this Pandemic will continue to challenge us. The holidays will come, we will hear the shofar sound as we will find a way (even at in person services) to be physically distanced but to stay socially connected. We will commemorate Tisha B'av this summer, shake a lulav and etrog on Sukkot, discuss books at our book clubs, bake and cook together, spend social time 'at the well' and so much more. Schools will reopen, though they will not look or feel like they used to. As least for the time being.

So I say- yes to physical distancing and no to social distancing. It is social connection that we need right now.

We continue to be MJCBY. As long as we have to, we will, for the health of our community, and those we love, stay physically distanced and at the same time socially, spiritually and as a community, as close as we possibly can.

LIFE LONG LEARNING

Dear friends,

These last few months have been unlike anything we have experienced before, and we have missed seeing everyone in real life very much! In true MJCBY spirit, COVID did not stop us from continuing to learn, have fun as a community, and celebrate our Judaism - albeit on Zoom.

There were so many wonderful and meaningful events we have enjoyed together since the pandemic began - starting with our inter generational Women's Seder, two Matzah bake events, a Pre-Passover Wine and Schmooze Recipe exchange for adults, a Teen Tik-Tok Challenge, and many fascinating movie discussions: "Unorthodox" with actor and consultant Eli Rosen; "The boy who harnessed the wind" for Teens; "Inside the Mosad" 4-week Series; "No. 4 Street of our Lady" with Holocaust survivor Fran Malkin; "The Help", and more.

Let us not forget about all the delicious food we have made together from our respective kitchens, connected by zoom: a 4-part authentic Israeli Dinner, a 2- part Italian dinner with kosher wine pairing, blintzes making, black and white cookie making with the Teens, Sachertorte baking - all complete with fun and thought provoking discussions.

We enjoyed Israeli dancing, Origami making for a timely cause, celebrating our graduates with visits, connecting with our Teens via our new Whatsapp groups, and a fun and delicious TGIS for our youngest friends, where we made ice cream from scratch.

MJCBY will continue to keep you busy and connected all summer long! We are exploring all options for continued meaningful programming based on current guidelines, and with your safety and wellbeing in mind. For now, we will continue to bring you TGIS via zoom three more times this summer; as well as a variety of cooking, film discussions and other activities; and look forward to seeing all your smiling faces again, in good health very soon!

As always, feel free to email me and share any feedback, ideas, hopes and dreams you have for our community as we forge ahead during these unprecedented times. Together, we will continue to learn, and together we will continue to connect and have fun!

Have a wonderful, safe and HEALTHY summer,
Miriam Krinsky

Religious School News - Notes From The Cantor

Dear 7th Grade graduating class,

I have had so much fun teaching you guys this year.

I have been telling everyone, everywhere I go, that I have never had a class like you.

Seriously, everyone in my class at my rabbinic school has had to hear me go on and on about my brilliant 7th grade students all year -- the questions you ask, the insights you come up with, the creativity and enthusiasm with which you all approach every topic and every assignment. But it's not just that you're all incredibly smart -- like scary smart, every single one of you. It's not just that you're creative, enthusiastic, and talented -- and you are all that too, as you demonstrated not only in the Hanukkah play, and the Purim Shpiel, both of which were just the best, and in all of our group readings of the books of Genesis and Exodus.

What makes you really special is that you work not just as a class, but as a team that really pulls for each other in a way I have never seen 7th graders do. You guys, as a group, are really special in that you all truly saw and valued the gifts and skills each other has, and brought your full selves while making space and welcoming each other, every time we got together. It had nothing to do with me, you did it yourselves. It's so rare, and such a gift you gave each other and gave me.

It's funny that we call this "Religious School," because when people hear the word "religion" or "religious" they sometimes think they're being taught beliefs. The truth is, no one can teach you what to believe. Your teachers here, the Rabbi and I have tried to introduce you to the stories, traditions, language, and culture of your people and your heritage. We have only scratched the surface. There is so much more for you to discover, learn, and wrestle with about being Jewish, that you will continue to encounter throughout the rest of your lives. How you feel about all these things we've studied -- the Torah, Israel, history, traditions and holidays, life-cycle events, prayers, and God -- will continue to change throughout your lives, and that's a good thing. It should change. It should always be evolving and growing, as you do, and as your knowledge does. But what I want you to take away with you is the knowledge that we need you. When I say "we," I mean the Jewish community, including the Morristown Jewish Center -- the people who think of this building as a second home, which I hope all of you do too. Today is not goodbye. I fully expect to see every one to find a way and stay connected to this community. We need your voices, your knowledge, and your ideas. We need your prayer-leading and Torah reading skills. We need your abilities to teach, share, tell stories, solve problems, and see the best in others. You are valuable to this place, and you shape its future.

When I say "we need you," I also mean the larger Jewish community. At the beginning of this school year, we talked about what it means to be Jewish, and I want you to take away from that, is being Jewish means being part of a big extended family that stretches across the world. That family needs you. We need your creativity, your intelligence, your questions, and your challenges. You are incredibly valuable to the Jewish people, especially because of your unique abilities, as I described earlier, to see, appreciate, and bring out what is best in each other. As Jews, we all are given the monumental task of doing tikkun olam, repairing the world. That means facing the problems and challenges that you see in the world. So, when you look around and you notice the health care system in the United States is broken; when you hear protesting structural racism; or gender inequality; if you have ideas about what can be done about the problem of violence in public schools, or environmental damage caused by human activity. These are just a few examples of the problems in the world around us, that Jews all over the world consider our responsibility to work towards fixing. There are Jewish organizations addressing and wrestling with all these problems, because we know it is our responsibility to do so. It's your responsibility now too. This is what we mean when we talk about tikkun olam, and doing a mitzvah or tzedakah. These are the next steps that you will lead us towards, as the next generation of Jews who are inspired to do this work. It may sound like an huge task, which is why the Talmud teaches us: "You do not have to complete this task of repairing the world, but you are not free to stop doing it."

We are about to sing this piece from the Talmud as our closing to this commencement ceremony in just a moments. I want to add, that I have no doubt that every one of you is up to the task of doing that work of Tikkun Olam. Your dedication to bringing your all to everything you do, your incredible commitment to continue coming together as a group and doing real learning, even in the face of this very strange and frightening pandemic that has turned the world upside down for the past four months.

Religious School News

A MESSAGE FROM THE BOARD OF ED

Dear Religious School Families,

At the time a remote learning plan was enacted back in March, we anticipated a temporary situation. Our plan was intended to keep us connected for a few weeks and to educate our children in a meaningful way. We have certainly learned a lot since then about how to best teach and learn in a virtual world.

With these experiences in mind, we are planning for several scenarios for the 2020-2021 school year that will educate, engage and meet our high expectations for excellence in teaching and learning. This includes all programs of Hebrew and Judaics for K-7th grade, B'nai Mitzvah preparation, ALP and several opportunities for youth and family engagement. We are optimistic about this coming year and excited to be thinking in new ways how this beloved community extends far beyond the walls of our physical space. Within the state and local guidelines as well as adhering to the CDC recommendations for gatherings and events, we are looking at the best possible way to reopen our program this fall. Be it in person, virtually or some hybrid of these two, the faculty and staff will be ready and awaiting your return. Our calendar is shaping up, our programs are being planned, and we want your family to be a part of it all! Please note that we will welcome students back on Wednesday, September 9 for grades 3-7 and on Sunday, September 13 for grades K-7. ALP will begin Monday, September 14.

As always, health and safety will remain our top priority. When more information is available to us, and as guidelines provide a more clear path to reopening, we will communicate that information to you. Please be on the lookout for several other emails in the coming days/weeks that will outline registration and address re-opening in greater detail. As always, if you have any questions, please don't hesitate to reach out to me, any member of the Religious School board or synagogue clergy.

Warm regards,

Marci Charm,

Chair of the Religious School Board of Ed

I want to say a word about the toy you all got with your certificates. It is for fun, but symbolic. You can launch these off into the air and they are supposed to light up as you do, (you'll have to tell me if they actually do.) We hope that we are launching you off today to greater heights of learning and sharing your light. I am so proud of each of you and I am honored to have been your teacher this year. Thank you for being an amazing and inspiring class.

Sisterhood News

In this unprecedented time, Sisterhood has been called upon to support MJCBY while we recover from the COVID-19 outbreak. Sisterhood has stepped up and helped the synagogue financially as they regain their footing during this time of recovery. Most recently, Sisterhood paid for the new boiler for the building, which provided a huge financial boost for the Synagogue. Continued support from all our Sisterhood members will ensure the vitality of MJCBY in the years to come.

As an enlightened and educated woman, you will meet other women that share your values. We hope you will join us for our programs throughout the year, especially our Paid Up dinner.

There are many ways to support Sisterhood!

- Pay your annual dues and become a member of the MJCBY Sisterhood. If you have done so in the past, we thank you. If you never joined Sisterhood, consider doing so this year.
- We run a full service Gift Shop. It is located across from the Willner Chapel in the Rotunda. We hope when you need a gift, you will visit us for all of your Judaic and gift needs. Shopping at the Gift Shop supports Sisterhood.
- Participate in our fundraising efforts. Our High Holy Day Gift Campaign is our major fund-raiser for the year. Any level of participation supports Sisterhood. (see page 10)
- Sponsor a Kiddush (once we again have an Oneg) run by our Sisterhood members.

We look forward to greeting you at a service, event or meeting in the near future.

MJCBY'S LEGACY SOCIETY

MJCBY's Legacy Society

"These are the times that try men's souls...it is dearness only that gives every thing its value." Thomas Paine

The last four months have definitely been trying times for us all.

Our beloved home in Morristown (the Jewish Center) is now 121 years old and over that century plus has seen its share of trying times.

Two World Wars, the Spanish Flu, the Great Depression and so much more.

Thanks to our founders and generations, we have weathered all storms and we will safely get through Covid together. MJCBY is one large family and we will always be here for one another.

As in Paine's quote, we value what MJCBY means to our lives, our family and our community.

By becoming a member of our Legacy Society you help to ensure the continuity of our heritage.
